Supervisors make the right decision

In the Rappahannock Record's February 4 paper, a lead article stated that our board of supervisors rejected a funding request from Save the Rappahannock Coalition.

This subject was not listed in the printed agenda. Apparently, it was brought up at the meeting and discussed.

Dozens of citizens turned out to voice their opinion on this request for additional funding. How did they know it would be discussed and others who would object didn't?

We should realize there is a difference between a 19,000-volt line and a 110,000-kv transmission line. This is the reason why 99% of all transmission lines are overhead.

More than enough of our taxpayer dollars have already been expended. Supervisors did the right thing by voting to reject the funding request.
